Title: Proposal to encode a missing Cyrillic letter pair for the Orok language
Author: Ilya Yevlampiev, Karl Pentzlin
Status: Individual Contribution
Action: For consideration by JTC1/SC2/WG2 and UTC
Date: 2011-07-06

1. Introduction

Orok (Óрокский язы́к, ISO 639-3: oaa) is the Russian name for the language known by its speakers as Ulta or Ujlta (ульта, уйльта). It is counted among the Tungusic languages. The language is spoken in the Poronaysky and Nogliksky Administrative Divisions of Sakhalin Oblast, in the Russian Federation.

According to the 2002 Russian census there were 346 Oroks living in Russia, of whom 64 were competent in Orok. Additionally, Oroks live on the island of Hokkaido in Japan.

Orok is used conversationally in everyday situations by the members of the older generation. It is also the language of oral folk literature.

An alphabetic script, based on Cyrillic, was introduced in 2007. A primer has been published, and the language is taught in one school on the island of Sakhalin [1] [2].

(The text of this introduction up to here is an augmented and revised excerpt from [3].)

This alphabet contains one letter "en with left hook" which is not included in Unicode 6.0. This letter (i.e. the case pair comprising it) is proposed here.
It is emphasized that this letter occurs together with, and in contrastive use to, the already encoded letter "en with hook" (U+04C7/U+04C8).

2. Proposed Characters

Block: Cyrillic Supplement

Additions for Orok

Ԩ   U+0528   CYRILLIC CAPITAL LETTER EN WITH LEFT HOOK

ԩ   U+0529   CYRILLIC SMALL LETTER EN WITH LEFT HOOK

Properties:
0528;CYRILLIC CAPITAL LETTER EN WITH LEFT HOOK;Lu;0;L;;;;;N;;;;0529;
0529;CYRILLIC SMALL LETTER EN WITH LEFT HOOK;Ll;0;L;;;;;N;;;0528;;0528

Sorting:

In the Orok alphabet, the "en with left hook" sorts after "en" and before "en with hook" (U+04C7/U+04C8).
