Additional information on the proposal to add three symbols:

1. An example of the use of the square foot symbol

This sign was located conveniently 100ft away from the location of the 13th and 15th Unicode Conference in San Jose, CA.

As you can see this example shows the use of the symbol in advertising, but informal surveys of professionals in the field indicate that its use is not limited in that way.

2. No examples of the square inch symbol have been found. It's a unit that would be in use in a different industry from the source of the other two symbols. It's possible that it is a wrong analogy to the proposed SQUARE FOOT symbol, but it is also possible that it exists, but is used in an unexamined area.
