At meeting 51 of ISO/IEC JTC1/SC2/WG2 17-21 Sep 2007, a resolution was made asking that the China national body meet with other interested parties to resolve any remaining issues in the proposed Tai Tham encoding. As a result an ad-hoc is to happen at Payap University, ChiangMai, Thailand between 21-22 January 2008, chaired by Mr Peter Constable. Recipients are invited to form a delegation to that meeting. The delegation should be no more than 5 people, consisting of a team leader, at least one person who is an expert in the script and its use and one person with expertise in the computational aspects of the script, including existing fonts, keyboarding and sorting.

Delegates should bring with them any samples of problematic characters and sequences, information on existing keyboard layouts, fonts and sort orders, including dictionaries or other documents showing those sort orders.

In addition to the ad-hoc, an introductory tutorial on Unicode and the Tai Tham proposal is being offered. If you would like to be involved with that, please contact Martin Hosken.
