A collection of 461 Characters glyphs of Khitan small script are proposed to be encoded in this proposal, include 448 characters, 10 radicals and 3 symbols. Reference books are Qidan xiaozi yanjiu (Research on the Khitan small script, China Social Sciences Press, 1985) written by a research group including Chinggeltei, Liu Fengzhu, Chen Naixiong, Yu Baolin and Xing Fuli, Qidan xiaozi shidu wenti (Problems in the decipherment of the Khitan small script, Research Institute for Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa, Tokyo University of Foreign Studies, 2002) by Chinggeltei, and Ji Ruhe and Wu Yingzhe, Qidan xiaozi yuanzi zixing guifan yu yuanzi zongbiao (A Criterion and table of Khitan small Characters, Journal of Inner Mongolia University, 2009,3). Daniel Kane, The Kitan Language and Script, Leiden • Boston, 2009.

The Khitan was a nomadic people in ancient China. In 916 AD, Yelü Abaoji united some other nomadic tribes in northeast China and established Liao Kingdom. Liao co-existed in history first with Five Dynasties and then with Northern Song Dynasty until 1124 when it was destroyed by Jin Kingdom. The Liao dynasty lasted in history for more than 200 years, with nine emperors in total. After the extinction of Liao Kingdom, a small troop under the command of Yelü Dashi fled into the west. Yelü Dashi founded “the Western Liao” state in central Asia and proclaimed himself emperor in 1134. The Khitans ruled from their capital at Balasagun (in today’s Kyrgyzstan). The empire was later overthrown by the Mongols.

The Khitan language belongs to Altaic branch. The Khitan people who actually used two sets of scripts in parallel, which were the Khitan large script and small script, didn’t have their own script until the Liao state was established. The Khitan large script was created in Shen-ce 5 years (920 AD) by Tu Lvbu and Lu Bugu in the request of Liao Taizu Abaoji. The large script was ideographic and clearly modeled on the Chinese li shu “clerical script”. Shortly after the large script was put into use, a Khitan scholar named Yelü Diela created the small script which was phonetic. The Khitan scripts have been used to record various literary works. According to Liao shi (History of Liao), the Khitan people not only translated some classical Chinese historical books into Khitan script, such as Tong li, Zhen guan zheng yao and Wudai shi (History of the Five Dynasties), but also translated a number of medical books. Unfortunately, the book-ban movement was very severe in Liao dynasty; besides, it has been a long time from today. As a result, there were hardly any Khitan books remained.

The Khitan scripts continued to be in use to some extent by the Jurchens for several decades after the fall of the Liao Dynasty. Actually, three out of the extant inscriptions in Khitan small script were from the Jin Dynasty. In addition, the Khitan scripts were still in use in Western Liao until the state's extinction.

It was not until the end of 19th century that the Khitan language and scripts regained people's attention. In 1922, Liao Qing Mausoleum was unearthed by some local tyrants in today's Chifeng City, Inner Mongolia. Inside the tomb buried three emperors as well as an empress of Liao Dynasty, they were, Liao Shengzong, Xingzong, Daozong and his empress. On learning this news, a Belgium missionary named L. Kervyn arrived as soon as possible. He got two Chinese monuments and two Khitan monuments, and published his copy of all the characters one by one. After that, Xuanyi huanghou aice (Eulogy for Empress Xuanyi) was also unearthed from Liao Qing Mausoleum, which at the time stirred the academic world. From then on, collecting and researching work of the Khitan materials began both at China and abroad.
