Proposed Changes to kMandarin Field

John H. Jenkins

9 January 2020

1) Correction. The kMandarin reading for U+8B9D is zhán, which is consistent with the first edition of the Hanyu Da Zidian:

![Image of text]

The second edition corrects this to zhān. This is more consistent with Mandarin phonetics, where syllables that start with b-, d-, g-, j-, z-, or zh- and end with -n or -ng do not have the second tone:

![Image of text]

The Unihan database should make the same correction.

2) Additions. In Extension G, U+30EDD and U+30EDE are for biangbiang noodles. We may as well add the reading biáng for both.